Course Requirements and Assignments

- 1. Reading (20%) The student will read the assigned portions of the required reading before the class period in which they are due. Students will fill report the percentage of reading completed at the midterms and before finals week. Thursday, March 9; Thursday May 4.
- 2. Critical Questions (20%) To augment interaction with the readings, lectures, and classroom discussions, the student will come to each class in which we take up a primary reading with two critical questions about the reading. Good critical questions require time and thought with the material and go beyond simple questions of fact (i.e., Was Descartes an empiricist or rationalist?) or questions that are too open and vague (i.e., What was Locke's theory of knowledge?). On the contrary, quality questions are specific and often forced, forced in the sense that they present a thesis that must be accepted or rejected. A good example is as follows: "Descartes' intent was to put knowledge from sensory experience on surer epistemological grounds by applying radical methodological doubt. But in doing so, did he offer an adequate explanation of matter (i.e., extension) as opposed to mind in his dualistic theory?" With these questions, students are especially encouraged to apply Scripture and theology as this assignment is fruitful for evaluating whether philosophical ideas are commensurate with the Christian faith. These questions are due in class before each class period in which we take up a primary reading.
- 3. Précis & Presentation (10%) The student will select one of the primary readings and craft a one-page, single-spaced summary of the philosophical argument, to be presented (5 minutes long) at the beginning of the class in which we discuss the respective thinker (the student will also print enough copies for everyone). The outline of the précis should include an introductory paragraph that introduces and contextualizes the philosopher, a brief main body summarizing the philosopher's main argument and thus contribution to philosophy, and then a conclusion that poses two critical/discussion-leading questions. To give the student an example of the format and expectation of content, I will write, distribute, and present a précis for the first lecture on Descartes's Meditations, I-II.
- 4. Position Paper (25%) "What has Jerusalem to do with Athens," Tertullian exclaimed as he posited a strict relationship of conflict between Christianity and philosophy. Justin Martyr, on the contrary, argued that philosophy is only a secularized form of the wisdom of Moses (i.e., the Pentateuch), simply emancipated from revealed revelation and grounded instead in naturalistic or rationalistic reasoning. In 5-7 pages, select one philosopher as a lens to address this question of the relationship between Christianity and philosophy. Decide whether their philosophy aligns with the argument of Tertullian or Martyr. A hard copy of the position paper will be due in class on Thursday, April 20.
- 5. Final Examination (25%)
Your final examination will be cumulative, testing your knowledge of the contents of the course. It will consist of three sections: Identifications, fill-in-the-blank, and short essays. With the identification section, the student will be asked to identify a thinker or philosophical idea in three or four sentences.

The fill-in-the-blank will provide a sentence or two that require completion. And the short essays, of a page or two double-spaced, will answer the broader, more synthetic questions of the course material. The final exam will be available to take in Canvas on Thurs., May 4, and will be due on Thurs., May 11.

Class Attendance

Students are responsible for enrolling in courses for which they anticipate being able to attend every class session on the day and time appearing on course schedules, and then making every effort to do so. When unavoidable situations result in absence or tardiness, students are responsible for acquiring any information missed. Instructors are not obliged to allow students to make up missed work. Per their independent discretion, individual instructors may determine how attendance affects students' ability to meet course learning objectives and whether attendance affects course grades.

Campus Closure

To ensure the health and safety of students and employees, college administrators may decide it is necessary on rare occasions to close the campus. Once this decision is announced, instructors will contact students to provide further details regarding the campus closure's impact on those courses. Students are responsible to watch for communication from their instructors and respond appropriately. (Unless otherwise specified by the instructor in this syllabus, this communication will be sent to the student's Criswell College e-mail account.)

In order to make progress toward the courses' objectives, instructors have the freedom during most campus closures to require students to participate in activities as alternatives to meeting on campus. An instructor may, for example, hold class remotely (through Zoom) at the scheduled time, provide a recording of a class or presentation for students to watch independently, or assign other activities that students are to accomplish before returning to campus. Students are responsible for accomplishing these alternative activities as well as any course requirements listed in this syllabus during the period of the campus closure. If, during the period of the campus closure, personal circumstances prohibit a student from accomplishing these alternative activities or course requirements and assignment listed in the syllabus during the campus closure, the student is responsible for communicating with the instructor as soon as possible. Instructors will not penalize students who do not have the means to accomplish the alternative activities during the period of the campus's closure and will work with students whose circumstances during the campus closure prohibited their timely completion of course requirements and assignments in the syllabus.

Incomplete Grades

Students requesting a grade of Incomplete (I) must understand that incomplete grades may be given only upon approval of the faculty member involved. An "I" may be assigned only when a student is currently passing a course and in situations involving extended illness, serious injury, death in the family, or employment or government reassignment, not student neglect.

Students are responsible for contacting their instructors prior to the end of the semester, plus filing the appropriate completed and approved academic request form with the Registrar's Office. The "I" must be removed (by completing the remaining course requirements) no later than 60 calendar days after the close of the term or semester in which the grade was awarded, or the "I" will become an "F."

Academic Honesty

Absolute truth is an essential belief and basis of behavior for those who believe in a God who cannot lie and forbids falsehood. Academic honesty is the application of the principle of truth in the classroom setting. Academic honesty includes the basic premise that all work submitted by students must be their own and any ideas derived or copied from elsewhere must be carefully documented.

Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to:

- cheating of any kind,
- submitting, without proper approval, work originally prepared by the student for another course,
- plagiarism, which is the submitting of work prepared by someone else as if it were his own, and
- failing to credit sources properly in written work.

Institutional Assessment

Material submitted by students in this course may be used for assessment of the college's academic programs. Since programmatic and institutional assessment is done without reference to specific students, the results of these assessments have no effect on a student's course grade or academic standing at the college. Before submitting a student's work for this type of assessment, the course instructor redacts the work to remove anything that identifies the student.

Institutional Email Policy

All official college email communications to students enrolled in this course will be sent exclusively to students' institutional email accounts. Students are expected to check their student email accounts regularly and to respond in an appropriate and timely manner to all communications from faculty and administrative departments.

Students are permitted to setup automatic forwarding of emails from their student email accounts to one or more personal email accounts. The student is responsible to setup and maintain email forwarding without assistance from college staff. If a student chooses to use this forwarding option, he/she will continue to be responsible for responding appropriately to all communications from faculty and administrative departments of the college. Criswell College bears no responsibility for the use of emails that have been forwarded from student email accounts to other email accounts.

Disabilities

Criswell College recognizes and supports the standards set forth in Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990, and similar state laws, which are designed to eliminate discrimination against qualified individuals with disabilities. Criswell College is committed to making reasonable accommodations for qualifying students, faculty, and employees with disabilities as required by applicable laws.
