Course Description and Prerequisites

A survey of American history from American beginnings through the Civil War. (This course satisfies for a Humanities/Fine Arts course.)

Course Objectives

- The student will know the general course of American history through the Civil War, including a knowledge of the significant movements, ideas, and people.
- The student will develop facility in close reading by analyzing primary readings.
- The student will develop critical thinking skills by crafting critical questions regarding the readings.
- The student will evaluate historical developments and circumstances with Scripture and theology.
- The student will be able to apply the lessons of the American past to cultivate a better understanding of themselves, their faith, and their social responsibility as a Christian.

Required Textbooks

Thomas S. Kidd, American History, Volume 1: 1492-1877. Nashville, TN: B&H Academic, 2019. ISBN 978-1-4336-4441-2

Selected readings, obtained via Canvas.

Course Requirements and Assignments

1. Reading (20%) The student will read the assigned portions of the required reading before the class period in which they are due. In addition to the Kidd textbook, selected primary readings will be required. These readings will be obtainable in Canvas. A weekly reading quiz will be due in Canvas each Wednesday by 11:59pm.

2. Thesis Questions and Participation (10%) To augment the primary readings, students will craft two thesis questions for those class periods in which we take up a primary reading. Good critical questions require time and thought with the material and go beyond simple questions of fact (i.e., In what year did the colonists declare independence?). On the contrary, quality questions are specific and often forced, forced in the sense that they present a thesis that must be accepted or rejected. An example is as follows: “Proslavery advocates often cited the Bible to defend slavery. In response, abolitionists jettisoned the ‘letter’ of Scripture, which seemed to support it, for the ‘spirit’ of Scripture, which laid a more general claim to love neighbor. Does the abolitionist approach honor sound biblical interpretation and application? Does the proslavery approach respect Christian charity to neighbor?” Students should also come prepared to voice their questions in class for discussion. Students will submit their questions in Canvas each Wednesday before class by 3:15pm.

3. Précis and Presentation (20%) Each student will select one of the primary readings to write and present a one-page, single-space summary. The goal is to capture the main argument of the text. This entails a brief introductory paragraph introducing and then contextualizing the author, which is followed by two or three main-body paragraphs that engage the internal argument of the text. The student will then end the précis by posing two discussion questions about the text. Students will present their précis academically (i.e., reading the paper), which should take about 5-10 minutes, followed by a 10 minute question and answer. Students will sign up for the primary reading that they want to do on the first day of class, and presentations are due on the respective day that the primary reading is due. I will do the first précis as an example.

4. Midterm Examination (25%) The midterm examination will consist of three sections: identifications, fill-in-the-blank, and short essays. With identifications, the student will be asked to identify (in 2-3 sentences) a historical figure, event, or idea in such a way that the identification cannot be attributed to anyone or anything else. Try to be as specific and concrete as you can here. The fill-in-the-blanks will come loosely from the Kidd text. And then there will be 2 short essays (1 page double-spaced each) that will address a major topic from the reading and lectures. This will be a take-home exam, opened in Canvas on Wednesday, March 6, and due in Canvas by Saturday, March 9 by 11:59pm.

5. Final Examination (25%) The final examination will not be cumulative but will instead address the material from the second half of the course. The structure will be the exact same as the midterm examination (identifications, fill-in-the-blank, and short essays). Like the midterm, the final will be a take-home exam, opened in Canvas on Monday, May 6, and due in Canvas on Friday, May 10.

Weightings:

Class Attendance

Students are responsible for enrolling in courses for which they (1) anticipate being able to attend every on-campus class session on the day and time appearing on course schedules, or (2) participating in academically related activities as identified in online-course schedules including synchronous class sessions conducted remotely by video, and then making every effort to do so. When unavoidable situations result in absence or tardiness, students are responsible for acquiring any missed information. Professors are not obliged to allow students to make up missed work. Per their independent discretion, individual professors may determine how attendance affects students' ability to meet course learning objectives and whether attendance affects course grades. Professors apprise students of such information in course syllabi.

Students receiving grants, loans, or scholarships must meet specified requirements of various departments at the college and should consult relevant sections of the Academic Catalog. To ensure such funds will not be forfeited, students are responsible for contacting the proper departments to ascertain any specific course participation requirements and consequences of not meeting such requirements. Students receiving grants, loans, or scholarships should consult the Financial Aid office.

While Criswell College is a non-attendance taking institution, it nevertheless must demonstrate that students begin their courses in order to comply with Federal Aid regulations. Accordingly, students must participate in academically related activities during census periods. Failure to meet this requirement will result in students being administratively dropped from courses.

Academically related activity is defined as any course-related activity that may be used as evidence of attendance. Examples include:

- physical presence in a classroom during a class session with the instructor present,
- participation in a synchronous remote video class session with the instructor present,
- submission of an academic assignment, quiz, or exam,
- participation in an interactive tutorial or computer-assisted instruction,
- participation in a study group or discussion board that is assigned by the instructor,
- documentation showing that the student and a faculty member corresponded about the academic subject of the course.

NOTE: Logging into a Canvas course alone and logging into a Synchronous Online class session without active participation or with the camera off are not considered attendance.

NOTE: A census period begins on the first day of a semester/term and runs through the end of the last day to drop courses. During the census period, attendance data is collected in order to demonstrate compliance with Federal Aid regulations. There is no census period for winter terms since there is no last day to drop courses.

Campus Closure

To ensure the health and safety of students and employees, college administrators may decide it is necessary on rare occasions to close the campus. Once this decision is announced, instructors will contact students to provide further details regarding the campus closure's impact on those courses. Students are responsible to watch for communication from their instructors and respond appropriately. (Unless otherwise specified by the instructor in this syllabus, this communication will be sent to the student's Criswell College e-mail account.)

In order to make progress toward the courses' objectives, instructors have the freedom during most campus closures to require students to participate in activities as alternatives to meeting on campus. An instructor may, for example, hold class remotely (through Zoom) at the scheduled time, provide a recording of a class or presentation for students to watch independently, or assign other activities that students are to accomplish before returning to campus. Students are responsible for accomplishing these alternative activities as well as any course requirements listed in this syllabus during the period of the campus closure. If, during the period of the campus closure, personal circumstances prohibit a student from accomplishing these alternative activities or course requirements and assignment listed in the syllabus during the campus closure, the student is responsible for communicating with the instructor as soon as possible. Instructors will not penalize students who do not have the means to accomplish the alternative activities during the period of the campus's closure and will work with students whose circumstances during the campus closure prohibited their timely completion of course requirements and assignments in the syllabus.

Incomplete Grades

Students requesting a grade of Incomplete (I) must understand that incomplete grades may be given only upon approval of the faculty member involved. An "I" may be assigned only when a student is currently passing a course and in situations involving extended illness, serious injury, death in the family, or employment or government reassignment, not student neglect.

Students are responsible for contacting their instructors prior to the end of the semester, plus filing the appropriate completed and approved academic request form with the Registrar's Office. The "I" must be removed (by completing the remaining course requirements) no later than 60 calendar days after the close of the term or semester in which the grade was awarded, or the "I" will become an "F."

Academic Honesty

Absolute truth is an essential belief and basis of behavior for those who believe in a God who cannot lie and forbids falsehood. Academic honesty is the application of the principle of truth in the classroom setting. Academic honesty includes the basic premise that all work submitted by students must be their own and any ideas derived or copied from elsewhere must be carefully documented.

Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to:

- cheating of any kind,
- submitting, without proper approval, work originally prepared by the student for another course,
- plagiarism, which is the submitting of work prepared by someone else as if it were his own, and
- failing to credit sources properly in written work.

Institutional Assessment

Material submitted by students in this course may be used for assessment of the college's academic programs. Since programmatic and institutional assessment is done without reference to specific students, the results of these assessments have no effect on a student's course grade or academic standing at the college. Before submitting a student's work for this type of assessment, the course instructor redacts the work to remove anything that identifies the student.

Institutional Email Policy

All official college email communications to students enrolled in this course will be sent exclusively to students' institutional email accounts. Students are expected to check their student email accounts regularly and to respond in an appropriate and timely manner to all communications from faculty and administrative departments.

Students are permitted to setup automatic forwarding of emails from their student email accounts to one or more personal email accounts. The student is responsible to setup and maintain email forwarding without assistance from college staff. If a student chooses to use this forwarding option, he/she will continue to be responsible for responding appropriately to all communications from faculty and administrative departments of the college. Criswell College bears no responsibility for the use of emails that have been forwarded from student email accounts to other email accounts.

Disabilities

Criswell College recognizes and supports the standards set forth in Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990, and similar state laws, which are designed to eliminate discrimination against qualified individuals with disabilities. Criswell College is committed to making reasonable accommodations for qualifying students, faculty, and employees with disabilities as required by applicable laws. For more information, please contact the Student Services Office.

Intellectual Property Rights

Unless otherwise specifically instructed in writing by the instructor, students must neither materially nor digitally reproduce materials from any course offered by Criswell College for or with the significant possibility of distribution.

Research and Writing Standards

The default writing style for written assignments in Criswell College Courses is the latest edition of A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses and Dissertations by Kate Turabian. However, instructors are free to require alternative writing styles in their courses. These styles include but are not limited to the American Psychological Association (APA), Chicago Manual of Style, Modern Language Association (MLA), and Society of Biblical Literature (SBL) writing guides.
